IF YOU decide to buy the Neil Jones fixture to measure your groups more accurately, plan to spend at least $80. That buys the target-measuring tool and magnifier, which may then be fitted to a dial or digital caliper. For this test, we purchased the tool complete with dial calipers, for a total of $120. Only you can decide whether the results are worth that much, but if you're serious about your shooting, there are worse places to put your money. Our recommendation: We have found it much easier and faster to record group sizes using the tool than with other means.
