

Comfort Results

Each muff's rank was obtained by comparing it to its competitors: a 1 rank is the best, a 4 rank the worst. All final scores for comfort testing were very close together, suggesting that although there are differences from one model to the next, the variability of results reflects the highly personal nature of comfort. Different people will have wide differences in the shape of their heads, skin sensitivity, and the like, all of which will govern how they react to this type of evaluation. Nevertheless, there was general agreement that the RidgeLine product seemed to be the most comfortable product.
